Expanding Our Role as an Information Hub

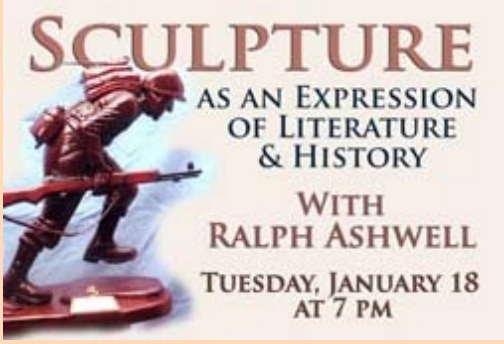
Bonnie Goble, Director

Fredricksen Library has needed television capability for quite a while. As an information center, the library needs to be able to provide up-to-the-minute news on events that are happening in the community and in the nation. In the event of a national emergency, or even a local emergency, Fredricksen should be able to provide immediate coverage. The library is used as a gathering center for people who need information. Until now, Fredricksen had no viable way to provide that for current events. Read More

Sculpture as an Expression of Literature & History

Tuesday, January 18 at 7 pm

Mr. Ralph Ashwell has graced our lobby display for years with his one-of-a-kind mahogany carvings centered around our history from the Revolutionary War through the Vietnam War. Join him as he delves into the stories behind those sculptures and the fascinating histories they portray. Using his own sculptures and recitations from American literature, Mr. Ashwell paints a vivid picture of our nation's history that you won't soon forget. No registration necessary.



Coming in February!

World of Percussion with Doc Gibbs!

Saturday, February 5 at 2 pm

Doc Gibbs, master percussionist, has toured or recorded with many top music artists through the years, including Grover Washington Jr., and added spice to the Food Network Emeril Live Show as musical director. Through interactive demonstration, discussion and performance, Doc Gibbs will have children and parents learning history, culture and geography through creating percussive music. Instruments from around the world such as the ocean drum, flex-tone, spring drum, rain stick, a gong from Thailand, the dun-dun or talking drum, and more will be demonstrated. For ages 5 – 12 with registration starting Jan. 23.

The New Fredricksen Blog!

Fredricksen is taking another step into the 21st century with our new blog aimed at our adult patrons. Our hope is to make this a new way for our community to grow. Along with book reviews, coverage of library events, and news, we are planning features on hidden treasures of the library, donations of the week, and virtual book discussions. Sidebars to the main blog include links to other blogs, brain teasers, and staff recommendations. Read More & access the Fredricksen Library Blog
